

Fairytale Journal – Deep down thinking

Name: Emperor Boxham

Like Emperor Boxham, keep asking yourself 'why' questions about your feelings.

Try and get new understanding about your deep down thinking.

WHAT HAPPENED?

Every time I remember going around in underwear, I want to hide. I feel so embarrassed and I was so rude!

WHAT WERE YOU THINKING/FEELING?

- I didn't want others to be smarter than me, especially a child!
- I thought I was better than others. I mean, I'm the Emperor!
- Once I had decided I was right, it felt too hard to say I was wrong.
- I wanted it to be true, so I just believed it.

Deep down, I felt that not being right or not being the best makes me less important.

WHAT DID YOU LEARN?

- It is better to admit I am wrong than to launch a clothing line and parade around in underwear!
- Everyone is learning in life. Everyone makes mistakes. Listening to other people actually benefits me... especially if it involves wearing clothes!
- No-one is best or most important. And no-one is perfect! I'm not less important if someone is smarter.
- When I feel stink about my choices, I can apologise, remind myself of good things about me, and hang out with people who love me.

WHAT NEXT?

---

- I'll invite Charlie and his mother to live in the court, if they want too!
  - I'll cook dinner for my staff...with food!
  - I'll send a funny gift to my guests and have a banquet.
  - Those tricky tailors can be forced to wear just underwear!
  - I've got the stores already, so let's try out the market for...
